DEMAND ACTION
BY ALL TEACHERS

DEFINITE PROGRAM TO MAKE SCHOOL CHAR-ACTER BUILDER.

HOLT IN APPEAL
Superintendent Calls for Full Cooperation by Teaching Staff.

Janesville teachers were urged by Super. Frank R. Holt, at a preliminary meeting Monday afternoon, to meet the challenge of modern conditions by making the public school function more adequately as a character building agency. "Some school systems are conspicuously meeting the problem of present day moral conduct," declared Mr. Holt, "and decide to set this aside before you as a task for the Janesville schools."

"School systems of different cities have become conspicuous because of the successful development of educational methods and practices, and the moral status and mental status of the elementary and secondary schools throughout the country is a problem that is being widely discussed. Unquestionably there is much untrained and unwarmed criticism."

The whole Janesville situation has undergone a change in the last few years. The home situation is different, and parents are different. The tremendous responsibility of guiding the character development and moral ideals of the young is not to be met and constituted a challenge to the public schools, according to Mr. Holt.

CHICAGO—Lew Thomas, 22, of Chicago, committed suicide yesterday by hanging himself to a bar with his belt. He was being held pending the arrival of a United States marshal from Chicago to answer charges of transporting a young man from Wisconsin to Chicago.

In notes left to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Shadley of Chicago, to his wife left him and when he followed to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schwartz of this city, the young girl became suspicious of Chicago and to a Chicago lawyer. Campaign Funds Bring Gray Hair to Leaders of Political Parties

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1924, by the Janesville Gazette—Special Correspondence to the Janesville Gazette.

Waukesha—It is a most important commodity without which a national political campaign can hardly be waged, giving the managers of all parties plenty to worry about. Not only are campaigns more expensive now-a-days than they have been, but sometimes an campaign contribution is unusual, if not impossible.

Goddice has announced that contributions will be received only with the understanding that they involve no personal favoritism or political favoritism later on. Mr. Goddick has gone even a step further in Indiana, in that his campaign manager, Mr. George Goddick, has no office, for he realizes that much of the irregularity connected with campaign contributions in the past has occurred after election, when large sums are easily obtained from men who want to be favored with new appointments. The democratic, who were just returned to Indiana, were able to clear it up only after four years of patient effort, culminating in their sale of box loads in Madison Square Garden last June.

The republicans had one of the largest deficits they ever incurred in 1920, after the election of President Harding, and it took the personal intervention of Mr. Harding to prevent the contribution of excessive sums from independent sources.

Replies to contributions

Looked back over the last few campaigns of the democratic and republican parties, it is evident that men of wealth who contributed to the campaign chests usually received some reward. Some of the ambassadors and ministers who were appointed to diplomatic posts, although they never had had experience in their positions to their political influence as developed through the financial aid of the campaign.

Even with their domestic affairs the same story was true. They never would have gotten to first base in public but for their generosity during campaign seasons.

Mr. Coolidge's insistence that no deficit be incurred until an early command to fulfill. And yet every body who knows practical politics is aware that in a two months' campaign waged through the several states it is almost impossible to know in advance what things will cost and that an application to spend frequent sums is to be expected.

BATTLE FOR HIS FREEDOM

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chicago—Friends of "Big Tim" Murphy, accompanied by attorneys, will arrive in Leavenworth, Kansas, today to begin a fight to liberate him from the federal prison, where he is serving a sentence imposed for conspiracy in the $35,000 mail robbery.

The plan to win Murphy's freedom was considered especially significant in view of the fact it follows closely the arrest of William Fahy, postal inspector in connection with the $2,000,000 mail robbery, and, in addition, officials interested in the investigation of the rubber.

Fahy claimed distinction. It was pointed out, for the part he played in obtaining Murphy's conviction. Friends of the former labor leader, however, have claimed Fahy "trained" the evidence to Leavenworth will include a new witness whose story is expected to be of great value to Murphy. It is understood Murphy's wife will join the group in Kansas.

STARTS $100,000
FIRE BECAUSE OF HIS "BAD HUMOR"

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

St. Louis—Fire, which swept the roofs of the Douglas lumber company, in the northern section of the city, causing a loss of about $100,000, was of incendiary origin, police announced yesterday.

Examination of the wrecked racing machine showed that a blow out caused the accident, and veteran racing men said it was a little short of miraculous that the car, speeding at 125 miles an hour, did not run down the bowl and crash into the hundreds of spectators massed in the infield.

This speculation brought out the true story.

The fact is that Boyer deliberately ascended himself to save others.

"I'm glad I saved them," the driver told those who carried him into the hospital.

Boyer, who is 40, is a native of Illinois, and he has been racing

in the Midwest for 10 years.

Boyer was prepared for burial

early this morning and will be shipped to his home at Detroit late today.

TODAY'S MARKET

GRAIN

Chicago Review. Reports from in parts of Chicago indicate what markets are up and down during the early dealings here today. On the advance there appeared a fair amount of selling by eastern grain dealers holding about a moderate position from the top. After opening at $1.21<sup>15</sup> to $1.22<sup>15</sup> and two days later at $1.21<sup>15</sup> to $1.22<sup>15</sup> a slight general setback.

Expectation of an increase in the visible supply and more favorable reports from Argentina were holding up the market, the market ended quickly and closed weak at a net loss of $1.21<sup>15</sup>, with Sept. 21<sup>15</sup> to 22<sup>15</sup>.

Local supplies with wheat and reports of cooler weather over the entire belt, December delivery being slightly firm, as compared with May, was the factor in the market's advance, with December at $1.30<sup>15</sup> to $1.41, the market scored gains on all deliveries.

The close was nervous, values ranging from the higher to the lower, with Dec. 31<sup>15</sup> to 1<sup>15</sup>.

Outs started unchanged to 5¢ up, with Dec. 32<sup>15</sup> to 33<sup>15</sup>, and later suggest a slight upward trend.

Provisions were firm.

But there is no law to prevent a state committee from spending money it pleases to spend, and it is not unusual for a national party to do the same. The state committee is likewise not within the jurisdiction of state tribunals. No careful watch is kept on how money is spent anyhow. It is dumped under general head such as advertising, publicity, promotion, printing and what not. Most of the workers of the campaign are frequently uneducated, though in some states in the past as high as $10 and $15 have been distributed on election day to tens of thousands of voters, whose business it is to persuade members of their families and friends to vote as they do. No line can be drawn as to money is given to workers who do the nominating for national tickets at the same time that they take care of local nominees.

It is not easy to gather statistics of what is spent in a national campaign. The records in Congress show only sums collected through the Republican and Democratic national committees and dispensed by them. It might be a different story and a different campaign if all money handled by state committees were under the same scrutiny.

SCHOOLS OF CITY OPEN FOR YEAR

Enrollment Expected to Be on Level With Last Season:

Brown III.

With a jingle of bells and much scampering and excited discussions as to "what do we do next?" the Janesville public and parochial schools got under way Tuesday morning.

Picture of enrollment for this year is not available for a day or two, but the initial figures expected to be about on a level with last year.

Tuesday was marked with some of the traditional features of "the first day" but through the thorough organization and carefully prepared arrangements made far in advance, the routine of opening school began in time, combined to avoid much of the confusion which in years past has wasted hours and left teachers exhausted for the rest of the week.

The smoothness with which the high school enrollment was being made during the openings was particularly noticeable, and the regular daily schedule of classes was carried out with a minimum of confusion. A few had difficulties in finding their correct classes, but on the whole the organization was so good that there was little need for guidance.

Principal Brown III. All of the new teachers arrived in this city over the weekend and were at their desks Tuesday. The changes in the grade schools have been few, but several replacements have been made in the high school staff.

Due to the illness of Principal W. W. Brown, who was taken with the mumps, the burden of administration of the high school as well as the grade schools has fallen on Sup't. E. O. Holt. He was actively assisted by V. E. Klotz, vice principal, and others members of the faculty.

A short statement of what may be expected in the way of athletic teams and the attitude of the administration toward high school sports was given by Mr. Holt at the two meetings held yesterday. He urged every member of the school to consider himself one of the factors necessary in bringing out winning teams in all branches of athletics as well as putting the school among the foremost scholastically.

Coach Edwards. Coach Edwards again called for all principals for the football game to be at a meeting in the auditorium at 1 p.m. Tuesday, and his evident intention of getting started on the athletic season at once was greeted with much applause from the students. Joe Smith, former coach of the football school, who graduated with the best class, led the opening cheers for the year.

The combined boys' and girls' bands of the school, under the direction of Bandmaster R. C. Jack, was the principal factor in creating a great amount of enthusiasm.

The bus schedules for children of grade schools as announced by Superintendent G. H. Johnson, were as follows: Morning—Leaving Jefferson, 8:20; Adams, 8:35; Washington, 8:45; Webster, 8:45; Blackhawk district, 8:45; Madison, 8:45; Adams, 11:45; noon; Jefferson, 11:45; Adams, 12:45; Webster, 1 p.m.; Douglas, 1:05; Blackhawk, 1:10; Jefferson, 1:20; return trip at night, Adams, 2:35; Webster, 2:45; Jefferson, 3:15; Blackhawk district, 3:20; Adams, 3:35, arriving Washington, 4 p.m.

Bar Association Votes to Attend Funeral in Body

Members of the Rock County Bar association will attend the funeral services of John M. Whitehead and all attorney offices will be closed during the hours of the services Wednesday. A meeting of the bar association will be held in the court house Tuesday afternoon with the county well represented.

The committee named by President George Sutherland on memorial and resolutions follows: A. E. Matheson, E. D. McGehee, M. O. Mount, M. P. Richardson, Janesville, and T. D. Wood, Beloit.

All attorneys to attend the funeral will meet at the court house at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday and will remain together during the services at the Congregational church.

Those attending the association meeting follow: Johnson, S. N., Matheson, A. E., McGehee, E. D., Mount, M. O., Wood, M. O., Mount, E. D., McGehee, Arthur M., Fisher, Roger G., Cunningham, S. G., Dunwiddie, Charles, Endow, S. G., Ryan, Harry Fox, George Sutherland, E. C., Burnside, Jesse, Burke, Janesville; E. M. Richmond, Evansville; John C. Reed, T. D. Woosley and G. L. Baker, Beloit.

CARE WITH PULLETS TO MEAN PRODUCTION

"A good winter crop in the Tucker state will depend a great deal on the care of the pullets right now."

This is the prescription written by A. N. Johnson, poultryman at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture.

Mites are oftentimes worse on fowls than on hogs, and the cleaning of the coops and pens is necessary if the quarters are infested to rid the chickens of parasites.

"For a good cleanser, mix in the proportion of 75 percent of kerosene to 25 percent crude sulphur oil, and scatter the concoction and every infested part of the coop with the mixture."

Mites rarely stay out the poultry during the day time, but hide in the cracks of the roosts and come out to吸 blood from the pullets at night. They are bad, too, because to this position they have no way to rid the pullets and other fowls of life. To take the bird by the wings and immerse it in a solution of one part of sodium fluoride to one gallon of warm water. He generally uses a basket to hold the solution, and dips the birds as fast as another man can catch them.

Johson cautions that fowls should never be dipped during cold weather, but advises dipping when the weather is warm and sunny.

LIBRARY ROBBED AT WHITEWATER

Antigo Teacher Is Appointed to Supervisor Post

Miss Martha Johnson, Antigo, has been employed as supervising teacher in Rock county to succeed Miss Louise Jacobson. The appointment was announced by County Superintendent G. T. Johnson.

Miss Johnson has had five years experience as supervising teacher in Oneida county and taught one year in Vernon county rural normal. She has also had some experience as an elementary teacher. She is a graduate of Vilas State Normal.

Entance was made through a basement window.

The robbery was not discovered until 11:30 a.m. Monday. White Memorial library was entered by thieves sometime Sunday night or early Monday morning and several hundred dollars were taken. The library is in the basement of the church, but the main entrance was missing from the glass doors.

Further investigation showed the basement window had been opened.

Neighbors report the robbers evidently waited indecisely, as they heard no noise during the night.

The library board agreed the collection of coins cannot be reduced, as they were donations from citizens.

Henry Cullen was elected chief ranger at the annual roll call and election of officers of St. Joseph's court, C. O. F. Monday night at Engle hall.

Other officers are as follows: Tony Haasuka, past chief ranger; Peter Rauther, vice ranger; George Dill, treasurer; E. F. Lewis, assistant general secretary; Jacob Bleck, treasurer; William Lanier, John Koehler and John Bleck, trustees for one, two and three years respectively; Dr. M. A. Cunningham, physician.

Officers will be installed in October.

FREE USE OF PIANO AT MUNY DANCES

Free use of a piano was made to the Janesville Municipal Golf club for a year, Tuesday, to be used at the public dances at Riverside park.

The piano will be used at the next dance, which will be held at the pavilion tomorrow night, starting at 8 o'clock. Tickets will be 50 cents each, a special rate of 25 cents will be paid for 50 cents or three for 25 cents will be paid.

A large crowd is expected. Most outdoor dance halls of southern Wisconsin are now closed, it is stated, so the dance here will fill a need.

The band will be the same as at the previous dance, the band will be the City Summer Horns.

Music will be furnished by the band, M. C. A., for June 1st and to discuss enlargement of the course.

A total of 125 rounds of golf were played at the municipal links on Sunday and Monday. Of these, 81 were on Sunday.

Starts Vacation—S. T. Brueckel at the post office, started his vacation Tuesday, to be gone 12 days.

J. E. O'Hara, foreman, was appointed. R. J. Dawson, general delivery window clerk, was ill Tuesday.

Monday's work marked the completion of paving on Prairie avenue for three blocks from St. Mary's to the south of town, the paving of the south half of Milwaukee avenue from East street to near Garfield. Work Tuesday was proceeding on Sherman avenue, with the prospect of finishing this job within two or three days; and on the south side of Milwaukee avenue, beginning at East street.

On Monday, 2000 yards of asphalt were laid on Milwaukee avenue, starting at the intersection of Sherman and Pleasant, and a record of 1,180 yards.

Arthur Withington, Baraboo, new employee of the engineering staff of the department of public works, arrived in the city Tuesday and was assigned to inspection work on one of the paving jobs.

It is expected the worker working on Sherman avenue will be moved to North Washington street within a day or two and when that job is finished, East street will be poured from the Fourth avenue bridge to Franklin street.

SPEECH AND SLANG. It is unfortunately true that Senator's law applies to speech, not less than to coinage—the bad currency tends to drive the good out of circulation. Instead of the example of the better educated and trained prevailing with the others, it is the other way about and what is least good tends to move, that vicious imitation grows into a settled habit. The present age disregards formality of all things else, it has discarded the frock coat and the top hat, and feels in refuge in the lounge suit and the trifly; but it is possible to be informal without being slovenly. Our English friends would be shocked to see us in the honorable endeavor to keep it from sinking into idiocy.

Mr. Whitehead, Beloit, was president of the Wisconsin branch of the League to Enforce Peace.

He was vice president of the Illinois Coal company of Illinois, and manager of the Ophir Lead Mines company.

He was president of the Wisconsin branch of the League to Enforce Peace.

Other associations and clubs with which he was connected as a member were the American Economic Association, the National Economic League, the State Yale Alumni Association, Beta chapter of Phi Delta Theta, and the Alpha chapter of Sigma Chi, the City Congregational, Chicago, and the University club of Madison.

Paul Grubb, attorney. John M. Whitehead will be remembered as a good citizen and a mighty fine man. He was always consistent.

He stood as a friend and good neighbor. He stood at the top in all worthy things, having intense patriotism and favorable attitude towards governmental affairs. He was a man of culture, education and ability.

Thomas S. Noland, attorney, of Beloit, John M. Whitehead. He was a good citizen and a Christian gentleman. He was highly respected throughout the state and in political circles.

Friend of Justice Taft. William Howard Taft, chief justice of the supreme court and former president of the United States and Senator Whitehead were at Yale together and formed a friendship that was continued through the years following. Mr. Whitehead graduated in 1877 and Mr. Taft in 1878, having previously graduated from Cincinnati university. Upon his visit to Janesville several years ago, when he was campaigning for the presidency, Mr. Taft stopped at the Whitehead home.

E. O. Holt, superintendent of schools. Mr. Whitehead was the type of citizen who exemplified in his community life those fine ideals which we in public education should like to inculcate in our boys and girls as we seek to prepare them for citizenship.

The splendid example of such type, a real asset in developing high moral standards among the young. The real value of such a character to Janesville will be never known; his influence will have far-reaching effects.

County seat of Rock county, one of the richest agricultural countries in the state of Wisconsin.

Settled in 1835. Home of the first state fair.
Was great wheat growing section. Then through the years, various industries—
steel, different manufactures, here—cotton clothing, iron and steel, wooden goods, fountain pens, plants of Chevrolet Motor and Fisher Body companies, etc. Daily Gazette third oldest newspaper in state.

City manager form of government. Paving 6 miles of streets in 1921. Janesville has an active Chamber of Commerce where every business is interested in reference to the city may be had for the asking.

I want the people of America to be able to work
less for the government and more for themselves.
I want them to have the rewards of their own industry. That is the chief measure of freedom. Until we can reestablish a condition under which the earnings of the people can be kept by the people we are bound to suffer a very distinct curtailment of our liberty.

—CALVIN COOLIDGE.

John M. Whitehead—"Semper Fidelis"

John M. Whitehead had no use for the trifling details of a political diplomacy which might compromise his moral courage or deep conviction.
It was a great moral strength and a lofty character. In early youth he imposed upon himself certain austere rules by which his life was guided. He never attempted to impose those rules upon others but lived up to them himself with the rigidity of a Puritan. It was in the blood and born of his ancestry. He was a man of truth, devoutly loving his country, and anything which seemed to him destructive of the principles upon which the republic was founded was abhorred. Had he been so disposed, he might have gone farther and higher in political life. But he had no liking for the meanness of a campaign for such distinctions. He was content with the confidences imposed by neighbor and other with whom he came in close personal contact. Not because of political approval, not because of 10 years' service in the state senate,
but because he was president of the State Bar Association or bore other honors from associations and organizations with which he was affiliated, do we remember him here at home,
but rather because of that confidence in his stability of character and his unswerving devotion to the things which he had laid down as a rule of conduct as we pay willing tribute to his memory. In his legislative career he was guided mainly by his desire to see right. So he gave honesty of study to subjects presented to him and his colleagues for consideration. When convinced, he was as inflexible as a Rock of Gibraltar in his position and generally able to make others come to his viewpoint. In that act of presenting with force and clearness a subject which he had studied of analyzing it and simplifying
it to the comprehension of the common man, of clothing it in language as plain and foresight as the diction of John Bunyan, he has had few equals in the public life of the state.

Strikingly in his principles, commanding firmness; influenced by patriotism and guided by conscience;
conservative in his nature, advising against rash-ness; he carried it gravity and dignity and weight of character which enabled him to control more active natures. In these later years he has been feted and commended to many.

It may be said of him that Janesville has lost its foremost citizen. He was known nationally, to law, and to his church connections, to which he was deeply devoted. As a member of the convention having to do with the erection and inauguration of the monument to Commodore
Oliver Hazard Perry for the victory on Lake Erie which forever swept away naval armaments
from the Great Lakes, he found congenial service to his country.

The acid test of a man's character is in the position he holds among his neighbors. Cordial respect, profound confidence, warm affection were the permanent daily tributes by John M.
Whitehead's community. He was a pillar of the temple and his loss will be felt in the passage of time.
A loss that will grow and increase as the days go by.

"Semper Fidelis" might well have been borne to the countenance of John Whitehead, asleep and belonging to the immemorial years.

"Semper Fidelis," epitaph of epithets, may be inscribed on the tomb, but it will also be engraved on the hearts of his neighbors.

The bedding season still goes on—on the windshield.

There is plenty of money, it is said in banking circles, and the fat Elliott fund just dying for want of subscriptions.

Another Milestone on Miracle Highway

Another milestone has been erected along the highway of miracles in modern history. The world flight has at last come to anchorage in America again after circling the globe but for the gap across the home continent. The terror of the Arctic and the tropics were negotiated. The long leaps across mountain seas and the landings in treacherous harbors have been made. Uncharted as are the lanes of air they have become charted for future travelers along the world's sky highway.

Protected in a great host of airplanes, the Americans have again demonstrated that as explorers
they have the spirit of the ardent in boldness

THE BEEF CATTLE PROBLEM

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Washington—When you sit down at the dinner table opposite a porterhouse steak or a slab of roast beef, or even a common-place order of beef stew, nowadays, you are face to face with a symbol of a national problem—the beef cattle situation
to be exact.

The housewife and the hotel steward are paying rather large money for beef. The cattle grower is getting little money for his livestock, so little in fact that stockmen are asking "Where do we go from here?"

Answers are vague and uncertain. One expects who studies agriculture from statistical tables and at close range as well, finds evidence that less beef will be raised and eaten in this country in the future. Just as the cotton boll weevil drove many cotton growers of the south to stock raising,
so, he thinks, a period of depression in live stock prices may drive some beef cattle men to dairying or to other lines of agriculture.

Most experts, however, would not agree with this forecast. In 11 western states there are 63,000,000 acres of land, or more than a million square miles, that the United States department of agriculture says "probably can never be utilized except in raising sheep and cattle." This land covers more than one-third of the United States. When reclamation projects and development of crops that will grow best in the semi-arid conditions will not alter the general situation much in this great area.

The department's conclusion is that this condition establishes the production of range livestock as one of the basic agricultural industries of the west. Just now the growers are getting no little per pound for their beef that those who breed even financially are doing as well as they expect. Yet in a time like this they can not dispose of their land and their stock to advantage. And it is no longer possible to turn cattle loose to feed themselves in a period of depression as cattle men did in Civil war days. Then, unbranded steers swarmed over unfenced ranges and a cow sold for a dollar. Now, the cattle man is tied up by heavy investments and his expensive carefully-bred stock would deteriorate to cheap inferior cattle in a few generations if left alone. He would rather hold out and hope for the best.

Cattle raising has evolved a long way from the simple and exciting game of capturing and branding wild steers and then leaving them more or less to take care of themselves until market time.
The cattle business has progressed from that stage to a highly complex and interdependent industry.

Cattle are bred and raised on the western ranges and, before they are two years old, are shipped to central points and sold to feeders who make a business of fattening them for market.
About one-fourth of the great corn crop of the middle west is fed to beef cattle. Corn makes meat fresh and white rather than yellow fat, and corn-fed beef is becoming an American tradition.

At present the plus of the beef situation is that the corn crop is not large and corn is selling for considerably more than a dollar a bushel, a huge price compared to that of several years ago. Many corn growers who ordinarily fatten cattle for market would rather sell their grain and feed it to cattle, considering that beef on the hoof is selling at such low figures. The western ranges have a plentiful supply of calves on their hands but there is almost a shortage of wellfattened stock.

The department of agriculture and live-stock and farm organizations are trying to help the stockmen. The steps being taken are not sensitive and they do not promise immediate relief,
but they do promise better times in the long run.
Government cattle experts believe the stock grower's best chance, within his own contract, for increasing his margin of profit lies in the cost of production. Much of the government's research and demonstration work is in problems of range live-stock production, including breeding, feeding, and management, and the growing of crops for stock.

Discoveries made at experiment stations are of little value until they are put into practice. An important part of the western program consists of demonstrations of successful range methods.
The cattle man is being shown that his is a complex business, and that his profits depend to a large extent on his progressive ways. The cattle grower who studies how to increase his beef crop and keep young animals from dying, and how to feed his stock to the best advantage obviously has a better chance of operating on a profit than the man who pays no special attention to these factors.

The federal department sends out exhibits and bulletins and uses successful ranches and the state experiment stations in demonstrating its ideas. Demonstration agents believe in letting ranch men see for themselves the practical application of up-to-date agricultural theories.

One place of demonstration work which is being stressed relates to purchased stock. There are now in the western states designed to improve range stock so that on the range a few scrub calves are found. In many sections where cattle are raised, however, the scrub is a serious problem.

Agricultural agents have been staging dramatic exhibitions to prove the real significance of purebred stock, and the importance of raising herd standards. Sometimes a purebred bull is offered to a stock grower who will exchange a scrub for it.
The two bulls are then brought in at a public meeting and the agent points out the differences between the two. In one Colorado town last fall a local cattle grower assisted the government by killing two steers of the same age, both fed in the same way for nearly half a year.
One of the steers was from a herd headed by a purebred Hereford sire. The other was a common whiteface, without breeding. The market value of the two steers was demonstrated before the assembled farmers of the community. The purebred, when dressed for market, weighed 715 pounds, whereas the scrub weighed 470. The purebred brought 16 cents a pound wholesale, while the scrub brought 12 cents. The total value of the purchased was three times that of the scrub.

Agricultural agents are trying to show that while purchased stock may cost more in the beginning, the profit is generally three times that on common stock.

The achievement is the most notable.

The latest international communist manifesto
which says that two million American farmers have thrown away their plots of ground, sounds like La Follette platform.

Justice being an abstraction, Judge Claverly will try to abstract some of it.

SHIVER BITES

Do you know the rich delights
of the food called "shiver bites"?
Bacon bread with butter on it.
And an inch of jam upon it.
Can you feel once more the hunger
of the days when you were younger?
And you hurried home from swimming.
Now and then to get a trimmung?
But more often, oh, no brother,
To get something good for your mother;
More to eat, more to eat, the frosty frost!

Oh, in those days even grew wastful eating food, and appetites.

Fairy shouted: "shiver bites!"

"Shiver bites!" we called them then,
"shiver bites!" and now we're men.

And our children stand and shiver

Till the good things we deliver.

Here they come with bright eyes dancing

To the kitchen fairely prancing.

Cold and hungry, and after dinner

Sounds to my like tooth that chatter

Is good for all the laughter.

It is good those kids are after.

"Shiver bites!" I hear them shouting

Oh, there isn't any doubtin'

That's real hunger that is shivering

For the nourishment it's seekin'.

"Shiver bites!" Oh, it was wasted;

That glad youth when cookies tasted

Sweet far than milk and honey.

In those days of many money,

You and I knew real hunger.

Knew the joys complete of swimming.

But today our strength is dimmin'

And we wonder, quite forgettin'

That our sun is slowly settin'.

If we had such appetites—

Did we plead for "shiver bites?"

Yes, time was they said of us

We were just as ravenous.

The Able McLaughlins

By MARGARET WILSON
(Copyright Harper & Bros.)

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE: The scene is Janeville, where the McLaughlins settled after their return from the prairie lands. At the opening of the play Wally McLaughlin, a soldier, comes home on furlough. He had been captured and made his escape, having learned some conversing and met Christie, with whom he at one time in love. On his return the soldiers were his friends again, but the time has come for Wally to begin again to turn to his regiment. But he spends most of the time in a hospital and when again alone he finds he has changed. He was sick then. It seemed destined to the boy of an invalid. Christie's mother was dead and there had been no change in the girl who avoided him. The wife had left him to marry him, she had a baby. After that he avoided Christie. She had to bear the consequences of growing thinner and weaker, all the time.

She was not popular. Men in town liked her body. They talked about her in every place where the next day was, and they told me sometimes they drove me in some carriage. And there was the case I just said. I was looking for my Peter who was sick in some stable. James McWhirr went to the police and to hospitals. There's none better than the McWhirrs. I know they have a fine reputation, but with those about them they would have not stayed longer. James said he would be always looking for him. She gave another great sigh. "Ah, well, Libby, some day he'll find him. Some day you'll be wed from him. No doubt, it's a bit of a shock." Then the sketch is well made for there. He wouldn't be like New Orleans, now. Wally says the lake is just like the ocean. "I've seen the lake, Libby," he said.

"I did see the lake. I was eye-seeking Peter." Libby was determined to have a change of subject. "I hate all the great buildings they have now in Chicago. It'll be changed since we saw it."

"I saw no buildings but the houses. It puzzles me why they have so many. There was a real old neighborhood standing by the door in our village. All the houses had been taken away. This boy won't be returning in '28, and he still needs him. He said he would be looking for my Peter. You was a fine old man."

Isobel tried to talk about the house, but Libby stopped her. "Not yet. Libby told her people what each man and woman in her house had answered when she asked if any had seen her poor sick husband. Isobel was constrained to tell what one and another of the neighbors hoped about the lost. The Squier had said that he would be coming back in the spring. The boy who had been staying in the city when the spring came, he prophesied. Whereupon the mother replied that he would stay away now if he could by any means get back to his home. And then she walked through a moment of silence, but knew he was dead, finally. Not wanting to go places. Not grieving.

"That's true, Libby. I know that well. I felt that way when I knew Alice was dead. There was rest then. No fear then." Then she sat silent. Christie listened herself until to offer her a bit of hope. She felt always in a way responsible for Peter's despatch, however much Wally scolded the idea. Wally hadn't told him not to write to his silly mother, had he? Had Peter always been whistling about, going around? He would have gone. Christie or no Christie. Wally told her she naturally blamed herself for everything that happened. And she acknowledged that in some moods it did seem to her that she was the cause of most of the pain she had about her. She began to say about the uncertainty of the mucus. Didn't her mother know that Wally never got but a few of the letters that had been sent him during the war? It was Christie's opinion that Peter was writing but maybe many times, and the letters to his mother. Maybe he had written with a good place he had to go, and how much wiser he was getting. They considered this probability from all sides.

And Libby's attention was diverted to the girl, face McLaughlin. She was not popular, by any means, who saw in Libby something more than her looks. Her hair had been away too many months for that. She had deep sympathy for her, and that reasonable came to her more often than to others. Wally had stopped asking Christie those questions, boding mischievous things about her friend.

THE WHITE BASKET

There are many uses to which the busy housewife may put the inexpensive but versatile wire basket. In canning tomatoes or preparing them for salad, place them in a wire basket before lowering them into the boiling water, so that they will come off without any trouble. Vegetables may also be peeled by this method.

Use the wire basket in frying. French fried potatoes, potato chips, croquettes and doughnuts.

To steam vegetables use the basket by placing it over a kettle of boiling water. The basket will hold vegetables in it. It may also be heated on top of the kettle in the basket.

These letters should guide you. If you are troubled with pains and nervousness, or any feminine disorder, bear in mind that the Vegetable Compound has helped other women and should help you. For sale by drug-gists everywhere.

WITH THE FARMERS

Farm Bureau Official Information

Wisconsin Leads
in Commodity
Co-op Market

(EXTRICAL TO THE GAZETTE)
MADISON.—Wisconsin's system of federated commodity cooperative organization is the "model" on which is based the cooperative dairy marketing plan for the whole country, which have grown out of the joint investigations of the American Farm Bureau Federation and the Wisconsin College of Agriculture by Theodore MacKinnon.

If the farmers, through their cooperatives, own the finished product, they must get some of the salesman's idea that the consumer's favor must be won for successful selling. Wisconsin dairymen are selling milk as a finished product to city wholesale milk distributors. They are also selling milk as a raw material to condenseries, cheese factories, and creameries.

For farmers living near a city, that milk, for the retail market, is their main product, MacKinnon says the first task is to develop local organizations to deal with the local problems. The next step is to federate a number of those units to deal with larger problems. These same plans the dairymen who supply the creameries have the same problems; so they may wisely build on the same plan.

Cooperative cheese factories have served Wisconsin farmers for years in converting the raw material, milk, into a marketable finished cheese. These customers have the finished product to sell. They therefore need an effective sales organization. This requires, according to MacKinnon, volume of product, merchandising plan, and talent to execute it. Experience points to federation of local organizations for selling purposes as the best way to accomplish this. Cooperatives have the same problems; so they may wisely build on the same plan.

Because milk is a complex new material, it gives rise to five or more manufactured products which require the formation of an equal number of specialized organizations. These different uses of the article are just as on the edge of the whole milk district of a city, the local may agree between themselves to balance the supply of milk. They may use their milk to manufacture their special product or sell it to another, as the market demands indicate.

BUSINESS PICKING UP, ROTATORIANS TOPS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)—Waukesha—C. C. Berlin, head of the commercial and professional department of the Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia, told Rotarians here that business was picking up in the east, and promised to get better when election uncertainties were past. He said great improvement was noticeable in the wheat and corn markets due to the advancing price. Mr. Berlin was president of Waukesha high school from 1897 to 1911, leaving to accept a position with the Curtis company.

Farm Machinery Inventor Dead

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—Henry J. Case, 85, inventor of inventing machinery and pioneer in the agricultural field, died yesterday at his home here.

Heating, pumping, and all kinds of bearing Mr. Case's name, have been used throughout the world for 50 years. His first invention, the automatic raker, was put on the market in 1862.

Mr. Case first became interested in machinery as a brewer on a wooden branch line railroad of the Catskill, N. Y., in 1875, he joined D. M. Ostborn company and built the first steel frame twine-blinding harvester.

In recent years he was adviser to the McCormick and Deering companies of Chicago, the Johnson companies of Batavia, and the Adriance and Moline companies of New York.

CATTLE JUDGING AT ELKHORN STARTS WED.

Livestock judging in the cattle classes started Wednesday at the Walworth county fair in Elkhorn with ribbons being awarded on Guernseys, all Shorthorns, Jerseys and Brown Swiss and Holsteins to be judged Thursday.

Walworth and Rock counties will compete in the other classes Holstein and Milk Shorthorns.

The Walworth fair attracted big crowds both Monday and Tuesday.
